Biography of author

James Howard Williams was born in the township of Butler near South Butler on December 16, 1905. From his earliest years he was deemed to be not very bright by his associates and his accomplishments through the years have been almost negligible. A penchant for delving into the past seems to be his greatest asset and sometimes his imagination appears to get a bit out of hand. Taking it all in all after this considerable lapse of time it is not believed that he will ever amount to much and I recommend that he adhere to his hobbies of whittling wooden logchains and building steeples on beehives.
