11273 Maunder Road

This now-gone house, once owned by Chester Haviland on the Rose-Wolcott Road, was a small, one-story structured with a narrow gable facing the highway. A portion of the front had been stuccoed over. The front was faced with lake stones and the sides with field stones. The house was roughly built. The quoins were an irregular red or white and had striped stones.

The lintels were wooden.
